Facebook hacking is an act of exploiting the Facebook authentication mechanism by guessing or brute-forcing user passwords. It is also possible to create a custom login page on the company's website, which allows for easy phishing and stealing of information. To combat against this, Facebook developed an algorithm which would lock out hackers quickly. However, some users found a way to bypass these security measures by requesting their unlock code on the Facebook Messenger App instead of logging into their account through their homepage. facebook.com/help/contact.php?show_form=pages Note: If you have not visited Facebook in the past 15 minutes, it will not send you an unlock code; instead, it will tell you to log in using your browser. Note: The program has been updated to fix the latest Facebook update (Version 2.8). Please download the latest version (2. 8.5) here: https://github.com/xplan/facebook-hacking-toolkit
